

Good Afternoon,

Here is the latest update on Matthew.

This storm should still be monitored very closely because there is a high level of uncertainty on anticipated effects as it approaches our coastline. Hopefully by tomorrow the projected path will become better defined.

BE AWARE that the storm system has a large cone of uncertainty and apparently this can make the system appear larger to the untrained eye. This is leading to massive misinformation on social media sites. I highly suggest that you direct your citizens to a reputable news source.

Right now there are also rumors of evacuations of the coastal counties, but as of the 2:00pm conference call with area 8 and the Soc.

There are NO evacuations planned at this time.

Of course evacuation planning is being reviewed but no evacuations are currently scheduled.

Thanks
Andy

Sent from my iPhone

 winmail.dat
4K